Bio for Gordon Myers

Gordon Myers has served as the Executive Director of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission since 2008. The NCWRC and its 650 employees are responsible for the management and conservation of North Carolina's wildlife resources and habitats, management of two million acres of game lands, design and maintenance of boating and fishing access areas, and enforcement of the State's wildlife management, inland fishing and water safety laws. Prior to his appointment as Executive Director, Mr. Myers spent 17 years in various capacities with the Wildlife Resources Commission, where he was involved with design and construction of boating access facilities, fishing piers, and other agency infrastructure. He also oversaw development of the agency headquarters, which is the first sustainably designed state government office building in North Carolina and that has been recognized with a LEED certification.

Recently Mr. Myers has led the implementation of agency strategies for legislative relations and financial sustainability; investments in workforce development; and development of organizational effectiveness through review and realignment to match the agency's Strategic Plan.

Mr. Myers currently serves as President of the Southeastern Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies (SEAFWA), an organization whose members are the state agencies with primary responsibility for management and protection of the fish and wildlife resources in 15 states, Puerto Rico and the United States Virgin Islands

Gordon Myers is a 1990 graduate of N.C. State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering. He and his family live in Raleigh, NC.
