Form 990, Part III, Line 4a, Program Service Accomplishments:
Through its science and conservation programs, Audubon has now identified 2,522 Important Bird Areas across the United States and is working through its network of field programs to develop and implement conservation actions at many of these sites. In Fiscal Year Ended 2010, Audubon celebrated the opening of the Grange Insurance Audubon Center in Columbus, Ohio, The Audubon Center in Little Rock, Arkansas and the Nina Mason Pulliam Salado Audubon Center in Phoenix, Arizona adding to the network of Audubon Centers across the country. Local education and outreach programs combined with efforts to enlist grassroots support for important policy initiatives reached more than 1,000,000 people and a total of 168,000 people volunteered their time to further Audubon's mission.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b, Program Service Accomplishments:
in conservation planning, ecological analysis, environmental sciences, bird migration studies and coordinated the efforts of 60,000 citizen scientists as part of Audubon's Christmas Bird Count.

The Policy Program provided guidance and support to Audubon's field offices in advocating for local and state level environmental and educational policy initiatives. With staff skilled in grassroots organizing, advocacy and communications, the Policy Program also supported state and multi-state conservation efforts to protect and restore large ecosystems such as the Everglades, the Mississippi River, Long Island Sound, and the Sage Brush Ecosystem. Key policy initiatives also included protecting forest ecosystems, strengthening the national wildlife refuge system, protecting endangered species, restoring and protecting wetlands, and protecting key bird habitat across the country.

The Education and Centers Program coordinated and provided assistance for the network of Audubon Centers and worked with field staff in the planning and delivery of innovative projects, fellowship programs and education materials. Educational programs are designed to produce both short and long-term on-the-ground conservation outcomes. Audubon Centers are a central strategy for meeting one of Audubon's goals to engage a diverse and growing constituency for conservation.

Communications and outreach efforts support Audubon's conservation mission and provide educational information through publications and content on the Web-site (www.Audubon.org). Audubon's award winning magazine which covers environmental conservation and wildlife issues represents the majority of Audubon's publication expenses.

Form 990, Part VI, Section A, line 6: The organization has over 400,000 members.

Form 990, Part VI, Section A, line 7a: The members of the Board of Directors are elected by the members of the organization. Of the three staggered classes of 13 Directors each, three-fourths are nominated by the Board of Directors and one-fourth by affiliates in their respective regions

Schedule G, Part I, Line 2b, Column (v): National Audubon Society, Inc. contracted with Telefund Inc. to provide telemarketing services. The purpose of these services is to enhance and increase a donor base that is sustainable over an extended period of time. It is not unusual that this type of activity will generate a negative cash flow in any given year, similar to a capital investment. The company pays a consultant for services which may generate donations in that year less than the fees paid to the fundraiser; but the company will receive future benefits as many of these donors will continue to contribute to the organization thus making the costs of this service valuable to the company.

Payments to fundraising counsels are for strategies and general services to enable Audubon to reach donors and potential donors. These services do not include payments for actual solicitation and therefore do not directly generate donations.
