Video Release: Less Talk and More Action Needed from Administration to Create New Energy Jobs

WASHINGTON, DC – Last night during the State of the Union address, President Obama once again stressed the need for comprehensive energy legislation. Unfortunately, we've heard that line before...Despite all their talk, the Obama Administration has repeatedly taken steps to block American energy production and job creation.

Republicans on the House Natural Resources released a new web video today highlighting how the American public is waiting for less talk and more action from this Administration to create new all-of-the-above energy jobs.
